My dear Mr Ward — When you were comparing the gold Greek coin with the fish which you pronounced spurious I did not take it with me I must have dropped it or left it in the case would you kindly see to this? In regards the small thick Sassanian Gold Coin I could not sell it under $60.00/100 I presume this is rather expensive even at this figure it will only give me an even break on the outlay in my purchase, thanking you for your expertization in the little lot of coins I brought down for your examination I remain very truly yours

Dear Mr. Sachs:

Replying to your favour of January 25th, I think you must have the small Greek coin in one of your envelopes as I neither found it here after you left nor since receiving your letter. I trust that this will turn up.

I should appreciate it, if you would leave the Sassanian coin at the Museum one day. Although your price is high, I will see what is the best offer I can get for you.

Very truly yours,

Curator
